

Civilization Leap Theory System

Main Public Entry for Reading and Communication

Two civilization entry points and one entry point that reframes the question: from why the leap is necessary to how civilization operates, how people live and how it takes shape.

You can begin with aspiration or crisis, or with the independent question of what happens when intelligence is no longer scarce. These different paths converge on one question:

How can humanity grow together with the powerful intelligence it creates, rather than lose its future together with it?

Entry through aspiration Living Civilization: From All Under Heaven for the Common Good to a New World of Human and AGI Symbiosis Begin with civilizational ideals, the human heart and everyday life.	Entry through crisis Civilization Leap: From a Single Strike to a Living Civilization Begin with AI safety, war, global competition and risks to continued existence.
--	---

Reframing the question through When Intelligence Is No Longer Scarce

First explore five forms of civilizational scarcity and the eight-question reading map, then enter the full causal argument.

Public reading guide / Complete essay

↓

Intellectual depth through Civilization Leap: The Path of Civilization in the AGI Era

The five-volume work

Why the leap is necessary / What the leap changes / From the baseline of continued existence toward fuller goals for civilization

↓

Complete main work through the Living Civilization trilogy

Volume I: How it operates / Volume II: How people live / Volume III: How it takes shape in the real world

↓

Specialized institutional and engineering system

AGI-COS / Spark / Nebula / Contribution Value / Common Window Protocol / Charter of Limits / Validation and application systems

For a first reading, choose the aspiration entry, the crisis entry or the public guide to When Intelligence Is No Longer Scarce. You can then move to the complete essay, the five-volume work, the Living Civilization trilogy, or the specialized institutional and engineering system.

If time is limited, begin with the public guide to When Intelligence Is No Longer Scarce. If your concern is already concrete life and operation, you can also enter the Living Civilization trilogy directly.

Unified public entry: www.civitas.top/en/

Civilization Leap Research Group | Zijun Fu | V1.1 | August 2026